Can International Students Work While Studying?

Work opportunities are subject to Singapore's immigration and employment regulations.

Students holding a Student's Pass may work without a separate work pass only if they meet specific requirements, including studying at an approved institution. During term time, eligible students may generally work up to 16 hours per week, or undertake qualifying industrial attachments that form part of their course.  Ministry of Ma...

Students should always check the latest MOM requirements before undertaking employment.

This wording is much safer than simply saying "students can work while studying."

Do You Need IELTS?

English Requirements Depend on Your Course & Institution

IELTS is not universally mandatory for every Singapore programme.

English-language requirements vary between institutions and programmes. Some institutions may accept alternative evidence of English proficiency, depending on their admission policy.

Don't Assume. Check Your Course.

At Mukheja, we help you understand the English-language requirements applicable to the programme you are considering.
